“ I’ve tested a lot of different materials. ChromaLuxe is the only product that I would use, that I would put my work on, and affiliate myself with, because it’s that top-quality. I can be confident about that. ”

ChromaLuxe Customer Spotlight:

MARY AHERN

Artist Mary Ahern is known for creating vivid oil paintings and mixed media art that brings the vibrant nature of gardens onto the canvas. What makes her vision really unique, is that she then takes her art and reincorporates it back into the garden, creating a harmonious blend of art and nature.

To achieve this outdoor art garden, Mary needed prints that could withstand the elements and still look great. She sent out her files to multiple printers around the country looking for panels that would have the longevity to realize her vision. With the extreme seasons of snow in the winter and 90-degree weather in the summer, she would see many of the panels quickly buckle when left outdoors. “I kept trying and nothing was working, and then ChromaLuxe came along,” Mary recalled. She ordered her first ChromaLuxe panels from the print lab Aluminyze, installed them in her garden, and observed their durability for two years, to make sure they could stand the test of time. When the ChromaLuxe metal panels stayed vibrant against the elements, blowing away the competition, she was confident to start selling them.

Mary shows her work at art festivals in the New York area, and takes commissions for her oil paintings and her garden installations. Thanks to ChromaLuxe panels, she was able to confidently install her art outdoors without worrying about premature fading or buckling. Her creative gardens stay in bloom year-round, the vibrant bold color of the prints rivaling the nature surrounding them.
